

IBC PROFESSIONAL BOXING LICENSE

IMPORTANT NOTE

Professional boxing is a hard, demanding sport and like so many other areas of activity or sport in which young people like to participate there is a high degree of risk.

The rules of the Indian Boxing Council governing the licensing of all professional boxers are designed to minimise such risk and to ensure that boxers are fully prepared fit and properly matched to enjoy a rewarding career with some financial benefit. Many young people may be attracted to the sport by the lure of big money and it must be realised from the outset that very few boxers make it to the very top.

The IBC expects that all applicants have had experience in amateur boxing. Amateur records are checked and anybody contemplating a professional career who has not already boxed is advised to contact an amateur association in their area.

The IBC may grant a licence to boxers who have no or only limited amateur experience but before doing so they will want to know that they have had proper and good tuition for some period of time under the supervision of a professional trainer and without exception, the applicant will be required to demonstrate his/her skills in a gym assessment prior to further consideration. All applicant boxers are required to be trained and supervised by a licensed trainer/second and all must enter into a standard Boxer Agreement with a licensed trainer of the IBC.

The application process is divided into 3 phases
